Thanassis Lalas was born in 1958 in Athens, where he also grew up. He studied at the Department of Economics within the Law School of the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. He distinguished himself in the field of journalism as the Director and Editor-in-Chief of To Vima tis Kyriakis, the most widely circulated Greek newspaper of its time. He was the creator of several successful newspaper supplements and magazines, including To Allo Vima, Vima Donna, VIMAgazino, the youth-focused magazine FREE, and the free press publication FAQ.

His journey into the arts began with designing notebooks of daily thoughts and artistic calendars. Gradually, he started painting on everyday objects - tablecloths, clothes, televisions, shoes, dinnerware, walls, and furniture - creating his own distinctive visual universe: the world of Thanassis Lalas.

For the past twenty years, he has devoted himself to painting and sculpture, living and working between Athens, Miami, and Paris. He has presented his work in numerous solo exhibitions across Greece, Cyprus, the United States, Switzerland, France, and the Netherlands.

Thanassis Lalas approaches life and art with a holistic perspective. He does not confine himself to a single medium - he paints, writes, sculpts - always with vibrant color, spontaneity, and a raw, experiential force. His works tell stories, through shapes and colors, about human relationships, emotions, passions, and psychological states. With a unique and immediate style, he combines visual and literary storytelling to create art that is alive, everyday, and universal.
